

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Data processor emulation information that has been collected and arranged into a plurality of first information blocks during the collection process is re-arranged into a plurality of second information blocks which differ in size from the first information
5 blocks. A sequence of the second information blocks is output from the data processor via a plurality of terminals thereof.